Seven Days of Us: A Novel, by Francesca Hornak (Berkley, $26) "The holidays are always a stressful time, but imagine being with your family for a full seven days. To ride out the weeklong quarantine imposed due to daughter Olivia's work treating patients of an epidemic in Liberia, the Birch family plans to spend the Christmas holiday in mother Emma's crumbling ancestral home, Weyfield Hall, in Norfolk. On top of isolation and the lack of escape, each member of the family is dealing with their own secrets. A wonderful tale full of humor and heartache and all the issues families deal with—love, longing, and regret. Sometimes being forced together gives you a new perspective on your family and yourself." —Maxwell Gregory, Lake Forest Book Store, Lake Forest, IL

We're Going to Need More Wine: Stories That Are Funny, Complicated, and True, by Gabrielle Union (Dey Street Books, $26.99) "I know what this book looks like, and it's true that it's a '90s celebrity's memoir. But the other parts of this book are so remarkable that to limit its description to that would be an injustice. Gabrielle Union is an honest writer and cultural critic. I'm ashamed I didn't know this until now. Her reflections on race, gender, and authenticity in an industry that values anything but are refreshing and ring true. These are the portions of the book that really sparkle on the page. Writer to reader, friend to friend, Union simply shares some of her stories, and I was glad to be a part." —Lindsay Crist-Lawson, Joseph-Beth Booksellers, Lexington, KY
