For Ages 9 to 12

Dragon's Green, by Scarlett Thomas (Simon & Schuster Books for Young Readers, $17.99)

"Scarlett Thomas has created a world every bit as vivid and magical as Harry Potter's. Effie's father insists there's no such thing as magic, although her grandfather is reputed to have practiced it. When her grandfather dies and leaves her his library, Effie finds out how much magic there actually is in this world—and in the Otherworld. Unfortunately, a dark mage is after Effie's grandfather's books, and he doesn't care who he hurts to get them." —Nancy Banks, City Stacks Books and Coffee, Denver, CO

For Teen Readers

The Black Witch, by Laurie Forest (Harlequin Teen, $19.99)

"The Black Witch is a 600-page epic fantasy that grabbed me and wouldn't let go until I read the whole thing over one weekend. The first in a new YA series, this book has everything—suspense, a fantastic world, magic, dragons, hints of romance, and important things to say about interpretations of history and acceptance. I will warn you, though, there is one major flaw with this book—the next one isn't available to read yet and the wait is going to be interminable!" —Carrie Deming, The Dog Eared Book, Palmyra, NY
