Other Indie Favorites

What We Lose: A Novel, by Zinzi Clemmons (Viking, $22)

"What We Lose is a quietly brilliant book detailing the way loss manifests itself in the life of its narrator, Thandi, and the reader, as Clemmons' writing shines back on you, too. The death of Thandi's mother brings about the loss of childhood innocence, her connection with her past, and her identity as a black woman. Clemmons' book is told in vignettes, stories, and thoughts, with the narrative of this time in Thandi's life slowly swirling through it. It's as powerful a meditation on grief as I've ever read." —Stefanie Schmidt, Water Street Bookstore, Exeter, NH

Happiness: The Crooked Little Road to Semi-Ever After — A Memoir, by Heather Harpham (Henry Holt and Co., $27)

"Heather Harpham's beautiful memoir is a deeply moving testament to love, commitment, and happiness. It might be difficult to find happiness while parenting a sick child alone, but Harpham's honesty about her struggles and fears allows us to connect to this story and see the beauty and happiness she finds. We watch in awe as she digs deep to do the difficult work, allows herself to be vulnerable as she seeks support, and practices patience in the face of anger. Harpham has found the happiness in moments, and her skillful prose will make your heart burst as you feel that happiness with her." —Luisa Smith, Book Passage, Corte Madera, CA
