Out of the Easy
by Ruta Sepetys

“This novel has it all: history, humor, heartbreak, and a heroine, Josie Moraine, who will stay with you forever. Set in the French Quarter of New Orleans in the 1950s, this story of a young girl trying to escape an environment where prostitution and petty larceny rule the day features a remarkable cast of characters, not the least of which is Willie Woodley, the madam with a backbone of steel and a heart of gold, who is a better mother to Josie than anyone realizes. Do not miss this book!” —Anne Holman, The King’s English Bookshop, Salt Lake City, UT

That Is Not a Good Idea!
by Mo Willems

“With his signature humor and engaging style, Willems gives us another wonderful read-along starring Fox and Duck, presented like a back-and-white movie. As Fox invites Duck for a walk and leads her to his house deep in the woods, chicks pop out repeatedly and warn us ‘That is REALLY not a very good idea!’ But little do we know, the surprise is on us!” —Meaghan Beasley, Island Bookstore, Kitty Hawk, NC

Eleanor & Park
A Novel by Rainbow Rowell
“Eleanor doesn’t have much going for her. Life with her mom and stepdad is minute-to-minute scary and the kids at her new school have singled her out for torment. Somehow into this reality comes Park, who is just trying to keep his head down and not make waves at home or school. These two misfits fall in love to a 1980s soundtrack. With humor and unflinching candor, Rowell propels readers through a story of first love and the courage it takes to keep going when all the odds are against you.”

Destiny, Rewritten
by Kathryn Fitzmaurice
“Being named after a famous 19th-century poet sure puts pressure on a kid, especially when her mother is an English professor. Given that, Emily Elizabeth Davis wonders about destiny and fate. Can any of us really choose our own path, or do we follow a determined plan instead? Big questions are woven into this terrific story filled with likable and memorable characters. There is a frantic search for a missing book that keeps readers guessing and much more to keep them thinking, even after the final pages are turned.”
—Christopher Rose, Andover Books, Andover, MA

Scarlet
by Marissa Meyer
“Cinder: Lunar Chronicles Book One introduced a wildly creative world and an unusual, highly satisfying update to classic fairy tale characters. Scarlet, the second book in the series, will sate fans’ appetites for more. Scarlet and Wolf, a street fighter and her reluctant bodyguard, go on a mission to find Scarlet’s grandmother, while Cinder’s story picks up where the first book ended, with her escape from prison. The secrets and motivations that bring their stories together are unpredictable and prompt more questions than answers. I can’t wait for the next book!”

The Dark
by Lemony Snicket, Jon Klassen (Illus.)
“Young Laszlo is afraid of the dark, but as long as it stays in the basement he can carry on. One night, however, he’s forced to face his fear when his beloved nightlight burns out. And, surprisingly, the dark isn’t nearly as menacing as he thought. Snicket and Klassen are an author/illustrator pairing made in heaven. Snicket’s offbeat and oddly charming tone is complemented perfectly by Klassen’s clean, simple representation of light and dark. A quirky and delightful little story to share before bedtime!”

A Tangle of Knots
by Lisa Graff
“Cady, an orphan with a talent for baking the perfect cake for any person, anywhere, hopes her ‘real and true family will step right out of the fog.’ When Toby appears out of that fog, it seems she may have finally found her perfect father. Both charming and not-so-charming characters, a pinch of magic, and a dash of mystery are all woven together to create the knot that is Cady’s past and present life until the loops unravel to solve the puzzle that Graff has deftly created.”

Bluebird
by Bob Staake
“This wordless picture book follows a young boy who is obviously an outcast, laughed at and bullied by the other kids in his class. When a bluebird starts following him around, the boy doesn’t feel so lonely anymore and the two develop a friendship. In this truly touching book, Staake delivers a story that will speak to anyone of any age about the importance of friends.”
