Other Indie Favorites

The Boy in the Suitcase, by Lene Kaaberbøl and Agnete Friis (Soho Crime, $24) "Not just another Scandinavian thriller, this book catches your attention from page one! Red Cross nurse Nina Borg gets caught up in a terrible series of events, when her erstwhile friend asks for help and leaves her a key to a public locker. The locker contains a suitcase that is unbearably awkward to carry, and when Nina opens it, she finds a naked, unconscious little boy. Who is this boy, and what does he have to be saved from? A great introduction to an award-winning team of Danish authors." —Margaret Brennan Neville, The King's English, Salt Lake City, UT

White Truffles in Winter: A Novel, by N.M. Kelby (W.W. Norton, $24.95) "This richly layered novel is based on the life of legendary chef Auguste Escoffier, who popularized French cooking methods at his restaurants at The Savoy and The Ritz at the beginning of the 20th century. Escoffier's love for two women: the beautiful, iconic actress Sarah Bernhardt and his lovely, poetess wife, Delphine Daffis, is at the heart of this complex tale. The characters are vivid and the food—oh, the food—is delicious!" —Erica Caldwell, Present Tense, Batavia, NY
