Other Indie Favorites

The Invisible Ones: A Novel, by Stef Penney (Putnam, $25.95) "Penney delves deep into the Romany world in this story of the search for a Gypsy woman who has disappeared. As the detective who seeks her discovers, each revelation leads to even more questions. His narrative alternates with that of a young boy to provide contrasting and conflicting perspectives, which increase the tension and mirror the intricacies of the unique world being portrayed. Penny succeeds in both exposing myths and crafting a compelling mystery in this satisfying read." —Bill Cusumano, Nicola's Books, Ann Arbor, MI

The Partnership, by Philip Taubman (Harper, $27.99) "Nuclear war continues to be an apocalyptic threat for America and other countries. Five men, members of the Cold War brain trust, have campaigned to challenge the United States and other nations to reconsider their strategic policies regarding nuclear arsenals. The Partnership gives us an intimate look at these men—Henry Kissinger, George Schultz, Sam Nunn, Bill Perry, and Sidney Drell—their origins, their work together, and their dealings with Barack Obama and other world leaders. Meticulously researched and compellingly told." —Sue Fleming, The King's English, Salt Lake City, UT

Another Indie Favorite
All Fall Down, by Megan Hart (Mira, $14.95) "Sunny and her three young children are hustled out of the Family of Superior Bliss religious compound in the middle of the night by her mother and told to run and not look back. Her mother's parting gift was a slip of paper with the name of her birth father, who has no idea he has a daughter. With nowhere else to go, Sunny arrives at his home, where his childless wife welcomes them and an uneasy peace is made. With obvious echoes of Jonestown, this will be great for book group discussions."

One Cool Friend, by Toni Buzzeo, David Small (illus.) (Dial, $16.99)
"Buzzeo's text and the illustrations by Caldecott Medal-winner Small are perfectly matched in this wonderful book. A pet penguin named Magellan makes excellent sense to Elliot, but what about his father? This 'cool' book delivers fun and so much more!" —Jeanne Snyder, Books & Books, Coral Gables, FL
