The Face Thief: A Novel, by Eli Gottlieb (William Morrow, $24.99) “The Face Thief pushes you down the stairs on the first page and never lets you get your feet back under you. Extraordinary characters are at the heart of a very believable series of events. The story shifts back and forth between the three main characters’ points of view. Gottlieb expertly guides you through the minds and emotions of the people who drive this crafty psychological thriller. Love, parenting, relationships, temptation, money, and green living are explored in an honest voice that doesn’t take sides. This is a must-read.” —Shawn Bridges, Literary Lion, Stephenville, TX

A Grown-Up Kind of Pretty: A Novel, by Joshilyn Jackson (Grand Central Publishing, $24.99) “The Slocumb women have the curse of having to deal with bad men and early motherhood. Mother Liza and grandmother Jenny are doing everything in their power to make sure that 15-year-old Mosey doesn’t find herself in the same predicament. Jenny unearths human bones while digging in the backyard, and with Liza too ill to explain them, Mosey decides to take it upon herself to find the answers to her family’s secrets and end the curse once and for all. Three Weeks in December, by Audrey Schulman (Europa Editions, $16) "Two stories set in Africa a century apart create a beautiful depiction of the fragility and delicacy of life. Jeremy, a railroad engineer at the turn of the 20th century, and Max, a botanist entering the 21st, contend not only with their personal demons but also with the environment and wildlife that threaten to overwhelm their world. This is compelling writing that shows the constant tension between humans and nature and how the balance is swayed by the slightest of factors." —Bill Cusumano, Nicola's Books, Ann Arbor, MI
