Other Indie Favorites

Capital: A Novel, by John Lanchester (Norton, $26.95) “Capital begins with the households of London’s Pepps Road each receiving a card that states, ‘We want what you have.’ Those menacing and mysterious notes are the jumping off point for Lanchester’s brilliant exploration of modern London. From the financial trader in the midst of growing midlife and career crises, to the Pakistani family struggling with faith and family, to a dying woman and her street artist son, Lanchester effortlessly weaves myriad stories into brief chapters to create a written tapestry of remarkable color and depth.” —Catherine Weller, Weller Book Works, Salt Lake City, UT

The Innocents: A Novel, by Francesca Segal (Voice, $25.99) “Although the plot of The Innocents follows the ‘man in love with his wife’s cousin’ formula, it is anything but stale and predictable. Caught in the loving web of his huge Jewish family, Adam Newman struggles to do the right thing while being true to himself and honest with others. Through wonderful, sometimes tragic and often quirky characters, Segal offers finely honed truths about humanity. I highly recommend this book—a wonderful summer read with some guts to it!” —Susan Tyler, The Book Bin, Onley, VA
