Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers

Jepp, Who Defied the Stars, by Katherine Marsh (Hyperion, $16.99)

"Combine a teenage dwarf, intricate 16th century historical detail that feels almost magical, court intrigue, astrology, and the debate surrounding fate versus free will, and you've got a stellar book. The story follows Jepp from his humble boyhood home to a palace where he's the plaything of royalty and then to an isolated island dominated by a brilliant and eccentric astronomer. The characters are all vividly drawn, and the wonderful writing pulls you in."—Deborah Johnson, Barstons Child's Play, Washington, DC
