Another Indie Favorite

The President's Hat, by (Gallic Books, dist. Consortium, $14.95) "Daniel Mercier is dining at a Parisian brasserie when Francois Mitterrand, the president of France, is seated at the next table. Mitterrand and his friends eat, talk of world affairs, and finally depart, but Mitterrand leaves his hat behind. The dazed Mercier promptly dons the hat and the next day at work he finds himself uncharacteristically eloquent, as if under a spell. The result is a job promotion that he feels he owes to his newly acquired hat. When Mercier inadvertently leaves the hat on a train, it falls into the hands of ... well, to say more would be telling too much. A charming French confection, irresistibly witty and whimsical." —Betsy Burton, The King's English Bookshop, Salt Lake City, UT
