Other Indie Favorites

The Winter People: A Novel, by Jennifer McMahon (Doubleday, $25.95) "This unsettling novel tackles one of the biggest questions there is: Can the dead be brought back to life? Weaving between 1908 and the present, the plot involves a missing mother, a dead husband, a revenge killing, secret papers hidden in cubby holes, a mother destroyed by grief, something terrifying that is buried, something evil uncovered in a field, and a closet door that has been nailed shut. An intricate and chilling ghost story, The Winter People will have you flying through its pages!" —Dianah Hughley, Powell's Books, Portland, OR

North of Boston: A Novel, by Elisabeth Elo (Pamela Dorman Books/Viking, $27.95) "In this gritty debut thriller, Pirio Kasparov has an unusually high tolerance for survival in cold water, a fact that captures the interest of the Navy and the attention of the thugs who were responsible for her submersion. Pirio, the only child of a wealthy, cynical Russian and his late wife, developed the attitude and instincts of a street fighter in boarding school, skills she will need when she decides to investigate why the boat she was on was rammed, her friend killed, and her godson left without a dad. Fast paced, atmospheric, and detailed, Elo's novel will have you reading way past your bedtime!" —Kathleen McGonagle, Buttonwood Books & Toys, Cohasset, MA
