Other Indie Favorites

The Good Girl: A Novel, by Mary Kubica (Harlequin MIRA, $24.95) "Independent and headstrong, Mia Dennett moves to the beat of her own drum. She has proudly distanced herself from her prominent, wealthy, and uptight Chicago family to teach art at an inner city high school. But when she is abducted and held captive in a remote cabin in rural Minnesota, she wonders if her estranged family is looking for her or even knows she is missing. With Minnesota's harsh winter bearing down, Mia and Colin, captive and captor, must forge a peace or succumb to the elements. As Colin's motives become clear, an emotional entanglement ensues that is provocative, thrilling, and absolutely page-turning!" —Melanie Green, Bluebird Books, Hutchinson, KS

The Mountaintop School for Dogs and Other Second Chances: A Novel, by Ellen Cooney (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, $24) "In Cooney's latest, a broken young woman and a sanctuary for broken dogs struggle toward common ground and, in the process, heal one another. Evie is a bright young woman, but often defeated by her demons. Surfing the web one night she spots a school for dog trainers and impetuously enrolls. Determined and inventive, Evie perseveres, learning to love and rehabilitate her tormented canine charges. Cooney's writing style is completely her own—lively, inventive, and fun to read. Do not miss this remarkable novel!" —Deon Stonehouse, Sunriver Books, Sunriver, OR
