Other Indie Favorites

How to Build a Girl: A Novel, by Caitlin Moran (Harper, $26.99) "In Wolverhampton, England, in 1990, 14-year-old Johanna humiliates herself on live television. Shortly thereafter, she decides to reinvent herself as Dolly Wilde, a fast-talking, hard-drinking sex adventurer who writes for the local music rag. Never mind that she doesn't drink, that she's a virgin, and that her music collection is comprised solely of The Beatles and the Bee Gees. Armed with eyeliner, a fair amount of Thunderbird 20/20, and pure determination, Dolly breaks onto the scene and makes a new life for herself, only to realize that the hardest—and most heartbreaking—changes are the ones we make within. Laugh-out-loud hilarious, inspiring, and profound, Moran has written the coming-of-age story of our time." —Amanda Hurley, Inkwood Books, Tampa, FL

A Deadly Wandering: A Tale of Tragedy and Redemption in the Age of Attention, by Matt Richtel (William Morrow, $28.99) "A Deadly Wandering is a riveting account of the fatal tragedy and subsequent seminal legal—and moral—battle that led to texting-while-driving bans being signed into law. It links neuro-scientific research, legal undertakings, and narrative nonfiction that is full of vivid, heartbreaking, real-life characters to expose and objectively question our modern glorification of multitasking and technological connectedness. Richtel's exceptional reporting will absolutely change the way you think about the devices that keep us online. This is one of the most important books of our time." —Julia Sinn, Bookshop Santa Cruz, Santa Cruz, CA
