Another Indie Favorite for Middle Grade Readers

The Book of Storms, by Ruth Hatfield (Henry Holt Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Danny wakes up after a storm to find his parents gone. An old tree was hit by lightning during the night and it is there Danny finds the taro that grants the power to speak with nature, both animals and plants. Danny must find his parents, but he has no idea of the powers of darkness and death that are set against him. With the help of a cat, Danny seeks the Book of Storms in a thrilling, fast-paced read, perfect for fans of Percy Jackson!" —Leah Moore, Northshire Bookstore, Saratoga Springs, NY

Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers

Red Butterfly, by A.L. Sonnichsen (Simon & Schuster Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Born with a disfigured hand and abandoned at birth, Kara has only known life with her adopted American mother in the Chinese city of Tianjin. When a random emergency throws their life into disarray and authorities no longer allow Kara to live with her mother, she is left at an orphanage. Influenced by Sonnichsen's own time living and working in China, this novel in verse triumphs by showing that a family is made up of the people you love, and home is wherever in the world they might be." —Clara Martin, Lemuria Bookstore, Jackson, MS
