Other Indie Favorites

The Wonder Garden, by Lauren Acampora (Grove Press, $25) "This collection of interlinked short stories is one of the best I've read in years. How many of us have often wondered what is going on inside our neighbors' houses? Acampora explores it all—the hopes, dreams, arguments, perversities, and disappointments. Though set in affluent, suburban western Connecticut, the stories' deeper themes are universal—think Chekhov and Cheever. Often dark, sad, and funny, and always intelligent and well-written, these stories leave the reader yearning for more by this wonderful new writer." —Bob Smith, UConn Co-op Bookstore at Storrs Center, Storrs, CT

Every Fifteen Minutes, by Lisa Scottoline (St. Martin's Press, $27.99) "Have you ever read a book that stayed with you during the day while you were working, going about your daily routine? A book that made you want to turn on the news to see what was happening in the characters' lives—even though you knew that you were just reading a novel? Scottoline's latest, Every Fifteen Minutes, made me do just that! The story of Chief of Psychiatry Eric Parish, his troubled patient Max, and a murder for which Dr. Parish is suddenly seen as a 'person of interest' will not let readers put this book down until the stunning conclusion." —Nona Camuel, CoffeeTree Books, Morehead, KY
