Another Indie Favorite

The Sea Inside, by Philip Hoare (Melville House, $17.95) "Part poetic introspective, part elegy laced with a slow sense of wonder, Hoare's new book is a uniquely refreshing work. In some ways it is a memoir; in others a naturalistic account of travel and contemplation. The result, however, is neither autobiography nor another volume in environmentalist polyphony but the genuine and comfortably deliberate thoughts of a man who, in our age, still looks to the sea and its myriad life forms with the wonder of an explorer of old. It is bracing to discover a voice that conjures the magic of nature without the heavy hand of dogma." —Brian Boeck, Between the Covers, Harbor Springs, MI
