Another Indie Favorite for Ages 9 to 12

The Arctic Code, by Matthew J. Kirby (Balzer + Bray, $16.99) "The Earth is in a new ice age and Eleanor's mother is a scientist working in the Arctic to find sources of oil to help with the world's disaster. When her mother goes missing, Eleanor stows away on an airplane to get to the station at Barrow to help find her. The search launches Eleanor on a race to discover what is happening to our planet and to uncover a threat that may not be of this world. A great start to a new series! —Sue Mason, Waucoma Bookstore, Hood River, OR

Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers

Hold Me Like a Breath, by Tiffany Schmidt (Bloomsbury, $17.99) "Schmidt has taken a classic fairy tale and turned it on its head, crafting a unique backstory and a compelling world for her reimagined heroine. No longer a one-note princess, Penelope Landlow is a modern twist on a well-known archetype, and her struggle to pick up the pieces of her family's shattered legacy will leave readers wanting more. A stunning start to a new series." —Lauren Strohecker, Farley's Bookshop, New Hope, PA
