This Is Your Life, Harriet Chance!: A Novel, by Jonathan Evison (Algonquin Books, $25.95) “With This Is Your Life, Harriet Chance!, Evison has crafted an instant classic. Recently widowed 78-year-old Harriet embarks on an Alaskan cruise that proves to be the vehicle for her own self-discovery. As one shocking truth after another is revealed about Harriet’s life, readers come to love this woman who is anything but perfect, and whose life is anything but ordinary. With an inventive, addictive structure and prose that surges with life, humor, and compassion, This Is Your Life, Harriet Chance! is one to move to the very top of your reading list.” —Rob Dougherty, Clinton Book Shop, Clinton, NJ

In the Dark Places: An Inspector Banks Novel, by Peter Robinson (William Morrow, $25.99) “In the Dark Places, Robinson’s 22nd Inspector Banks novel, is still rich in the landscape and culture of Yorkshire. Still populated with characters moving through their lives, reacting to events, reaching for experiences, skills, relationships—and justice for victims. Still ingeniously plotted, challenging even the astute reader to keep up through the nerve-racking suspense. And still shaping the story with local history and landmarks so that In the Dark Places, like each Banks novel before it, is unique, yet contributing to a remarkable portrait of modern Britain in all its insularity and diversity.” —Barbara Peters, The Poisoned Pen, Scottsdale, AZ
