Another Indie Favorite for Ages 9 to 12
Look Both Ways in the Barrio Blanco, by Judith Robbins Rose (Candlewick Press, $16.95)

"Jacinta is one of my new favorite characters. Her story rings true to the plight of many preteen girls — conflicting emotions about growing up, the desire to be good at something and fit in, the feeling of both loving and hating your parents, and more. But Jacinta must also deal with the anger, fear, and confusion of being the American-born daughter of undocumented Mexican immigrants. Young readers will love Jacinta's story." —Amy Oelkers, The Red Balloon Bookshop, St. Paul, MN

Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers
Trouble Is a Friend of Mine, by Stephanie Tromley (Kathy Dawson Books, $17.99)

"Zoe's life has changed because of her parent's divorce, and when Digby shows up on her front porch, she knows he is trouble. But Zoe cannot seem to say no to him. When she realizes that Digby's family situation is worse than hers, the story gets personal. Tromley has written a mystery/adventure with quirky characters who do not seem to like each other. This is what a YA book should be — smart, funny, and surprising. A terrific read!" —Margaret Brennan Neville, The King's English Bookshop, Salt Lake City, UT
