Another Indie Favorite for Ages 9 to 12
Baba Yaga's Assistant, by Marika McCoola, Emily Carroll (Illus.) (Candlewick Press, $16.99) "McCoola's debut is simply magical. Steeped in Russian folklore, this graphic novel honors the traditional tale of Baba Yaga, yet it remains thoroughly modern. Virtually alone after her father's remarriage, Masha Martin ventures bravely into the forest hoping to assist the dreaded witch, Baba Yaga. Her mother's mother had done just that, so long ago. Will the knowledge and love left by her grandmother be enough to help Masha pass Baba Yaga's enchanted tests? This fantastic adventure, with Carroll's perfect art, provides the answer." —Christopher Rose, Andover Bookstore, Andover, MA

Another Indie Favorite for Teen Readers
A Thousand Nights, by E.K. Johnston (Disney/Hyperion, $18.99) "In this retelling of The Arabian Nights, the unnamed protagonist is taken from her desert village to the palace of Lo-Melkhiin to serve as yet another in a long line of ill-fated wives. But rather than succumb to him, she uses her unique abilities to challenge his rule. This beautifully written story of sisterhood, magic, and female power has a lush setting, surprising plot turns, and wonderful portrayals of the protagonist's unexpected strength." —Sarah Prineas, Prairie Lights Books, Iowa City, IA
