For Middle Grade Readers

Beetle Boy, by M.G. Leonard (Scholastic/Chicken House, $16.99) "Wickedly comedic buffoons, genetically modified villains, industrious insects, and a scrappy protagonist fighting for his father's life keep this old-fashioned-feeling story fresh and contemporary. Readers will find themselves cheering for Beetle Boy and his amazing beetles." —Erin Barker, Hooray for Books!, Alexandria, VA

For Teen Readers

A Study in Charlotte, by Brittany Cavallaro (Katherine Tegen Books, $17.99) "This thoroughly entertaining addition to the Sherlock Holmes canon introduces readers to the great-great-great grandson of John Watson and the great-great-great granddaughter of Sherlock Holmes, who meet at a Connecticut boarding school and are almost immediately drawn into a murder investigation—one in which they become the chief suspects. This is a clever, satisfying novel that holds its own with the best works of the great Conan Doyle." —Nancy Banks, City Stacks Books and Coffee, Denver, CO
