For Ages 9 to 12: Revisit & Rediscover

Skellig, by David Almond (Yearling, $6.99)
"Michael, 10 years old and unmoored by his family's move into a fixer-upper, is reeling from the premature birth of his sister. Then he finds a creature in the crumbling garage. Is the barely alive Skellig someone he's imagined? A bird tumbled out of evolutionary history? An angel? Skellig, imbued with the wonder and eeriness of William Blake, is a mystery like no other." —Carol Doup Muller, Hicklebee's, San Jose, CA

For Teen Readers

The Smell of Other People's Houses, by Bonnie-Sue Hitchcock (Wendy Lamb Books, $17.99)
"Ruth, Alyce, Dora, and Hank are all teenagers coming of age in Alaska in 1970. Ruth misses her mother, especially when she needs her most; Alyce feels obligated to help her father, even when it costs her her dreams; Hank is trying to protect his two younger brothers, causing him to carry the weight of the world on his shoulders; and Dora just wants to feel the love of a good family and the warmth of a home. Hitchcock has woven their lives into an unforgettable debut." —Teresa Steel, Old Firehouse Books, Fort Collins, CO
