The Girl in the Well Is Me, by Karen Rivers (Algonquin Young Readers, $16.95) "Kammie is trying to navigate the social hierarchy of her new school after her old life fell apart. When she finds herself stuck in a well after an outing gone wrong, she has to reexamine the circumstances and choices that landed her there. Rivers' novel weaves together a number of important issues in an original story with some surprisingly quirky twists. Readers will find themselves falling down the well of Kammie's emotions, and the only way out is to keep reading!" —Marika McCoola, Porter Square Books, Cambridge, MA

For Teen Readers

The Serpent King, by Jeff Zentner (Crown Books for Young Readers, $17.99) "Three friends growing up in a small Southern town realize how little they really know about one another until tragedy touches each of them. Dill is the son of the recently jailed Serpent King, a Pentecostal minister known for handling deadly snakes. Lydia is a fashion blogger determined to flee their small town for New York. Travis is a misfit who prefers to dwell in the fantasy worlds he reads about. The Serpent King is a contemporary Southern novel about loyalty, betrayal, and becoming your most honest self." —Erin Barker, Hooray for Books!, Alexandria, VA
