Other Indie Favorites

Over the Plain Houses: A Novel, by Julia Franks (Hub City Press, $26)

"Tense and atmospheric, this novel is set in Depression-era North Carolina but confronts a number of issues that are relevant today. I consider it one of the best historical fiction titles I've read lately—what must have been intensive research blends seamlessly with unforgettable characters and vibrant depictions of mountain caves, mining towns, and struggling farms. The book brilliantly takes readers back to a bygone era while subtly showing that it is an era whose darkness could soon fall again. Fans of Claire Fuller and Ron Rash won't want to miss it." —Elizabeth Weber, The Book Table, Oak Park, IL

Life Without a Recipe: A Memoir of Food and Family, by Diana Abu-Jaber (W.W. Norton, $26.95) "Is it any wonder that memoir is the richest genre? The stories we live are far more fanciful, heartbreaking, and ridiculous than the ones we create with our imagination. We have no control over them. They unfold in spite of our best efforts in a clumsy, unsettled mess that becomes our life. In Life Without a Recipe, Abu-Jaber stops along the way to consider the terrain. She can't control the events, but she controls the words with tight, perfect sentences. There's a beauty and elegance to the prose that elevates this story of the author's search for identity that results in a warm and wise delicacy to be savored." —Terry Nebeker, One More Page, Arlington, VA

Another Indie Favorite

The Sunlit Night: A Novel, by Rebecca Dinerstein (Bloomsbury, $16) "The endless daylight of a Norwegian summer is the perfect backdrop for this warm and quirky debut filled with unusual characters and situations, a setting that is real yet somehow out of time, visual and precise writing, emotional warmth, and faith in the healing power of love. This tale of Frances and Yasha, their families, and their companions during a transformative summer in perpetual Arctic light is a perfect read for fans of Nicole Krauss' The History of Love or Bill Forsyth's classic movie Local Hero." —Anmiryam Budner, Main Point Books, Bryn Mawr, PA

For Ages 9 to 12

Simon Thorn and the Wolf's Den, by Aimée Carter (Bloomsbury Children's Books, $16.99)

"Simon Thorn's life has always been shrouded in mystery, but he never expected the truth to be as outrageous as it is. Simon knew he could talk to animals and understand them, but what he didn't know about was the existence of another world where five animal kingdoms fight for power to rule the others and he plays a key role in who gets that power. This book is filled with adventure, suspense, friendship, and betrayal. I can't wait for the next installment!" —Lisa Nehs, Books & Company, Oconomowoc, WI

For Teen Readers: Revisit & Rediscover

A Brief Chapter in My Impossible Life, by Dana Reinhardt (Ember, $8.99)

Originally published in 2006. "Sixteen-year-old Simone narrates a heartwarming story of family, faith, and, of course, boys. Simone has always known she was adopted. Now Rivka, her birth mother, wants to meet her. She has a reason, and it changes Simone's life in many ways. There are no easy answers, and there are always two sides to any issue. This book will change your life, too!" —Valerie Koehler, Blue Willow Bookshop, Houston, TX

For Ages 4 to 8

- There's a Giraffe in My Soup, by Ross Burach (HarperCollins, $17.99) "'Excuse me, waiter? There's a giraffe in my soup!' Ridiculously fun from the very first page, this tale wastes no time pulling readers right into the story of a boy who sends back bowl after bowl of soup in a restaurant after finding a different zoo animal hiding in each one. Readers will be endlessly entertained as the animals in the soup get sillier and sillier and the bumbling waiter grows increasingly flustered while he tries to keep his restaurant in order. Kids and adults alike will laugh out loud at the absurdity of every situation in Burach's debut picture book." —Page Seck, Blue Manatee Children's Bookstore, Cincinnati, OH
