For Ages 9 to 12

The Gallery, by Laura Marx Fitzgerald (Dial Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "The Sewell mansion, the height of elegance in 1928 New York City, conceals many mysteries. Rose Sewell, locked in her rooms upstairs, is consumed by art and said to be crazy. Twelve-year-old Martha, outspoken with the nuns one time too many and expelled from school, now works for the Sewells as a chambermaid. Overwhelmed with curiosity about Rose and Mr. Sewell, who is the model of success in the newspaper world, Martha pops the bubble of secrecy and cleverly exposes the truths of the wealthy and powerful." —Jane Morck, Third Place Books, Lake Forest Park, WA

For Teen Readers: Revisit & Rediscover

The Knife of Never Letting Go, by Patrick Ness (Candlewick Press, $10.99) Originally published in 2008 "In this brilliantly imagined world, Todd Hewitt lives in an uneasy community where everyone can hear everyone else's thoughts, or 'Noise.' His discovery that more humans are arriving from another planet bearing advanced technology plunges Todd's seemingly stable life into chaos. Questions of religion, gender roles, and political structure, including the small differences between terrorists and freedom fighters, make this novel of an imagined future feel contemporary." —Robert McDonald, The Book Stall at Chestnut Court, Winnetka, IL
