For Ages 9 to 12: Revisit & Rediscover

Shadow Spinner, by Susan Fletcher (Aladdin, $7.99) Originally published in 1998 "Marjan has the gift of remembering and telling stories. Shahrazad has a similar gift and has saved her own life and the lives of other young women by telling her stories to the Sultan every night. When Shahrazad runs out of tales, she calls upon Marjan to help her secretly gather more. Marjan's quiet life quickly becomes one of adventure and danger. This rich and exciting retelling of One Thousand and One Nights will captivate older middle-grade readers and teach them the power of story." —Holly Weinkauf, Red Balloon Bookshop, St. Paul, MN

For Teen Readers

This Savage Song, by Victoria Schwab (Greenwillow Books, $17.99) "August and Kate live in a broken world where violence breeds actual monsters. Kate wants to embrace her monstrous side, while August would do anything to be human. This Savage Song takes the darkness of the world around us and gives it form. Schwab has gifted readers with a fascinating—if gory—urban fantasy world, a pair of unforgettable protagonists, and a question that will linger long in the minds of readers: What does it mean to be inhuman in a world where humans do such monstrous things?" —Nicole Brinkley, Oblong Books & Music, Millerton, NY
