For Ages 9 to 12: Revisit & Rediscover

Becoming Naomi León, by Pam Muñoz Ryan (Scholastic Paperbacks, $6.99, originally published in 2004)

"Naomi and her younger brother live contentedly with their great grandmother in a trailer park in California. Seven peaceful years are disrupted when their mother appears and Naomi begins to deal with uncomfortable issues. Though Naomi finds solace in her soapcarving, for which she has a special talent, it is the trip to Oaxaca, Mexico, to search for her father that brings real answers. This beautifully written novel about family, identity, and loyalty is infused with a special warmth and authenticity based on Ryan's own heritage." —Carol Moyer, Quail Ridge Books & Music, Raleigh, NC

For Teen Readers

Phantom Limbs, by Paula Garner (Candlewick, $16.99)

"Otis took up swimming three years ago to save himself from the grief that was drowning him. Now he's training for the state championships as his coach, 18-year-old Dara, pushes an Olympic dream for him, a dream she gave up for herself when she lost her arm. Otis' summer looks to be full of chlorine and sunburn until he gets an e-mail from Meg, the girl he hasn't spoken to in three years—the girl who helped him tread water after a tragedy and then left town. Tragedy cuts deep, and every character in this book has scars—some terribly visible and others under the surface—but they are all beautiful. Paper Towns fans take note, this will be your new favorite book." —Leah Moore, Northshire Bookstore, Saratoga Springs, NY
