Walking to Listen: 4,000 Miles Across America, One Story at a Time, by Andrew Forsthoefel (Bloomsbury, $28) "Amidst a calamitous political landscape, Americans today seem wary of their fellow citizens and suspicious of one another's beliefs, religion, and ethnicity. Forsthoefel does an amazingly wonderful job showing us that our fellow citizens are not to be feared, but instead are to be celebrated for their humanity and their heart. Setting off to walk across the country after graduating college, Forsthoefel aims to get to know the people in the world by taking the time to listen to as many people who cross his path. A thoughtful and inspiring portrait of America today." —Hilary Gustafson, Literati Bookstore, Ann Arbor, MI

Marlena: A Novel, by Julie Buntin (Henry Holt & Company, $26) "I can't believe this is a debut novel: the writing is so assured; the prose so exquisite. Buntin is a master of word choice, and every sentence feels deliberate and precise. I quickly got sucked into this story about a pair of teenage girls, one doomed, one not. It was a quick read, but one I found myself lingering over. I'd recommend Marlena to fans of Megan Abbott's dark, twisty books about girlhood—this is a similarly fierce read!" —Lauren Peugh, Changing Hands Bookstore, Tempe, AZ
