Other Indie Favorites

The Baker's Secret: A Novel, by Stephen P. Kiernan (William Morrow, $26.99) "Emma is an apprentice baker in a small Normandy village whose quiet determination to keep her friends and grandmother alive during the Nazi occupation is heroic and heart-wrenching. Forced to bake 10 loaves of bread for the Kommandant each day, Emma stretches her supplies to make extra loaves to help feed the starving villagers. Once again, we learn that the bravest among resistance fighters are often little more than children themselves. What a beautiful book to recommend to book groups and customers seeking a well-written story." —Patricia Worth, River Reader Books, Lexington, MO

Saints for All Occasions: A Novel, by J. Courtney Sullivan (Knopf, $26.95) "Saints for All Occasions is a riveting story about family and the secrets they keep. Nora Rafferty receives some devastating news that sets in motion a slow reveal of a longstanding secret between Nora and her sister Theresa, who immigrated from a small Irish village to Boston in the 1950s. It is also the story of Nora's relationships with her own adult children and the secrets they hide from their mother and each other. Sullivan's writing is lovely, and she has brought to life characters who are stronger than they think." —Woody Chichester, Buffalo Street Books, Ithaca, NY
