Other Indie Favorites

Five-Carat Soul, by James McBride (Riverhead Books, $27) "Sometimes after I've read a great book by an author, I judge. When I picked up a copy of James McBride's new collection of stories, Five-Carat Soul, I was prepared to be disappointed; how could he top The Good Lord Bird? Was I ever surprised, in the best way possible! These stories have all the magnificent qualities of his National Book Award-winning novel: quirky, poignant, and hilarious characters amid myriad situations in life, and humanity at its most human presented in beautiful writing. A couple of multi-story combinations read like novellas, and satisfied my craving to know more about the most interesting of the characters. McBride has set the bar high once again." —Mamie Potter, Quail Ridge Books, Raleigh, NC

Code Girls: The Untold Story of the American Women Code Breakers of World War II, by Liza Mundy (Hachette Books, $28) "There is so much arguing these days over the existence of women in STEM fields and whether they should be allowed. 'Oh honey,' says Code Girls, wrapping an arm around your shoulder, 'we never left.' In riveting prose, Mundy shows the presence of these women from the very beginning—and then how they were almost forgotten after the war was over. Women who once had only a life of school-teaching to look forward to (even with a PhD) became people who saved lives and sunk ships. This book exists to remind us that women have always been in these stories, even if they're not shown." —Alice Ahn, Water Street Bookstore, Exeter, NH
