For Ages 9 to 12

Ivy Aberdeen's Letter to the World, by Ashley Herring Blake (Little, Brown Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Ivy Aberdeen has just suffered two huge losses: Her family's home has been destroyed by a tornado, and her secret notebook where she draws pictures of girls holding hands has vanished—only to reappear as pages left in her locker by a mysterious reader. It's not the best moment to get a crush on her new friend June, but Ivy perseveres through changing emotions and fears to figure out where she belongs in her world. Beautiful prose, characterization, and themes. Highly recommended!" —Cecilia Cackley, East City Bookshop, Washington, D.C.

For Teen Readers

The Belles, by Dhonielle Clayton (Freeform, $17.99) "In a world where people are born gray and swallow, only a Belle and her powers can bring forth beauty. But being a Belle may prove dangerous for Camellia Beauregard, as she discovers in the royal court of Orleans, where secrets and danger lurk behind every sparkling facade. The Belles is a rich, opulent, intoxicating book—reading it feels like eating the most decadent cupcake you've ever tasted. The atmosphere Clayton creates is sumptuous, and her characters are compelling, ambitious, and beautiful, though some only on the outside. I was blown away by this novel and can't wait for the author's next book." —Emily Hall, Main Street Books, St. Charles, MO
