Another Indie Favorite

The Fact of a Body: A Murder and a Memoir, by Alexandria Marzano-Lesnevich (Flatiron Books, $17.99) "Alexandria Marzano-Lesnevich's investigation of the murder of six-year-old Jeremy Guillory becomes an investigation of her own youth, in which she and her sisters were sexually abused by their grandfather. As Marzano-Lesnevich moves backward and forward in time between the young man who killed Jeremy and her own life, the reader is swept along on a current of dismay and awe: dismay that human beings can do these things to each other, and awe that the author could face such demons and move on. I've never read another book like this." —Anne Holman, The King's English, Salt Lake City, UT
