Meet Me at the Museum: A Novel, by Anne Youngson (Flatiron Books, $23.99) "This charming novel is told entirely in correspondence between Tina, a woman of a certain age in England who is questioning her place in the world after her best friend's death, and Kristian, a Danish museum curator who is adrift after the death of his wife. As their correspondence evolves and their friendship develops, they realize that the world may have more to offer than they initially thought. Meet Me at the Museum is sweet without being cloying, gentle without insulting the reader's intelligence, and a completely enjoyable read." —Carol Schneck Varner, Schuler Books, Okemos, MI

Chesapeake Requiem: A Year With the Watermen of Vanishing Tangier Island, by Earl Swift (Dey Street Books, $28.99) "I was so impressed with this story of Tangier, an exploration of science, history, religion, and culture driven by emotionally salient commentary from people who live there today. I thought it was particularly interesting to learn that the community is conservative both religiously and politically, but their home is being swept away by rising sea levels thanks to climate change, which is usually a politically charged topic. It was also interesting to have insight into what is likely the United States' first group of 'climate refugees'—terms that are also politically charged. Thoughtfully, lovingly, and intelligently done. An important read!" —Chloe Groth, Content Bookstore, Northfield, MN
