For Ages 9 to 12

Dragons in a Bag, by Zetta Elliott (Random House Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Did you know there's a portal to other dimensions right at the entrance to Prospect Park? A marvelous boy is dropped off with a strange woman for the day while his mother goes off to navigate real-world problems. The woman turns out to be a witch, and together they set out to deliver three small dragons back to their realm because there's no magic left in our world and they won't survive here. I love the magical escape from the complexity of life as a city kid, that real city-kid issues are addressed in the backstory, and that this is subtle enough to not feel pedantic." —Rebecca Fitting, Greenlight Bookstore (Fort Greene), Brooklyn, NY

For Teen Readers

Empress of All Seasons, by Emiko Jean (HMH Books for Young Readers, $17.99) "What a fantastic fantasy read! Author Emiko Jean makes full use of Japanese words and mystical elements of the yokai to craft a feudal-like world of historical emperor-led Japan featuring a kick-ass young woman with powers beyond mortal humans. Her Hunger Games-like quest of survival of the fittest in the bewitched Season Rooms brings together themes of love, trust, and loyalty. A real page-turner, this young adult fantasy is sure to be hit." —Maureen Palacios, Once Upon a Time, Montrose, CA
