Other Indie Favorites

The Weight of a Piano: A Novel, by Chris Cander (Knopf, $26.95) "A hulking black piano of Russian origin links the stories of two women: Katya, who must leave behind her beloved instrument when she immigrates to the U.S., and Clara, who is forced to sell her family heirloom when she loses her boyfriend and her home. The obsessive love each woman holds for the piano unfolds as the instrument journeys across continents. Chris Cander has crafted a novel of compelling beauty and characters who are complex, deeply flawed, and magnificently haunting. This will be a five-star beginning to any avid reader's 2019 book list." —Pamela Klinger-Horn, Excelsior Bay Books, Excelsior, MN

The Current: A Novel, by Tim Johnston (Algonquin Books, $27.95) "Tim Johnston's brand of storytelling is a curious hybrid of conventional crime fiction and observation of human nature that demands attention. In The Current, Johnston goes beyond the sensational and asks relevant questions when tragedy strikes, addressing real topics that come with the loss of a loved one and the questions that follow a horrific crime. As with Johnston's previous novel, Descent, his latest concludes with a wallop you will not see coming." —Javier Ramirez, The Book Table, Oak Park, IL

(Mariner Books, $14.99) "Introducing Auntie Poldi, a sixtyish amateur sleuth who has just retired to Sicily, where she intends to lay about and drink good wine for the rest of her days on the world's most fabulous island. Of course, things are soon stirred up by the murder of her hot young handyman, and Poldi becomes deeply involved. Great characters, fun plot, Italian charm—and what could be better reading for the chilly months than a novel set in sun-soaked Sicily? Don't miss what the Times Literary Supplement calls 'a masterful treat.'" —Lisa Howorth, Square Books, Oxford, MS

For Ages 9 to 12

It Wasn't Me, by Dana Alison Levy (Delacorte Books for Young Readers, $16.99) "Written in a highly accessible, chatty style that will help young readers situate themselves in a shifting narrative, It Wasn't Me tells the story of a horrifying act of bullying and one teacher's quest to find out the truth and bring healing to the victim and the school. The five kids found at the scene of the crime are forced to grapple with each other, looking past the stereotypes and seeing the character of the individual for the first time. It Wasn't Me is a fantastic middle-grade novel, perfect for fourth, fifth, and sixth graders." —Paul Murufas, Books Inc., San Francisco, CA

For Teen Readers

The Love and Lies of Rukhsana Ali, by Sabina Khan (Scholastic Press, $17.99) "This honest and real book really delivered and is already one of my favorites! Khan shows us the realities of a Muslim lesbian teen and the difficulties she has within her family and a group of friends. We see the extremes of the situation, but we also see the importance of family and the Bengali traditions. I loved Rukhsana's firmness in her own beliefs even while struggling with the traditions of her family. This really takes LGBTQ fiction to another level and will help open readers' eyes to the realities that many face in these changing times." —Candace Robinson, Vintage Books, Vancouver, WA

(HarperCollins, $17.99) "Pura Belpré led a rich life filled with travel, music, and countless stories. Readers will be inspired by this gentle, determined woman who knew it was vital to share the folklore from her childhood in Puerto Rico. For years, she read enthusiastically to countless children, spoke passionately to crowds of librarians, and retold treasured cultural tales in books. The influence of her work is still felt today, and Planting Stories is a worthy tribute." —Christopher Rose, The Spirit of '76 Bookstore, Marblehead, MA
