- The Animals at Lockwood Manor: A Novel, by Jane Healey (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, $26)
  “During WW2, Hetty Cartwright arrives at Lockwood Manor to take care of specimens from a natural history museum in London. The hosts of the large manor, the controlling major and his anxious daughter, Lucy, welcome Hetty and the specimens but don’t fully understand her. As time progresses, there are ghosts, unexplained visitors, fears, and moving animals that make the job of keeping the animals and fossils difficult. This book is a page-turner, a thriller, a love story, and a moving story with surprises.” —Lauren Zimmerman, The Writer’s Block Bookstore, Winter Park, FL

- We Ride Upon Sticks: A Novel, by Quan Barry (Pantheon, $26.95)
  “This is such a fun romp! It has everything you could possibly want in a book: field hockey, witches, and 80s bangs that have literally taken on a life of their own. Set in Salem in the 1980s, we follow a group of high school field hockey players as they struggle with their new dark powers and attempt to end their losing streak. One of the strangest, most satisfying books I have read in a long time!” —Hillary Smith, Copperfield’s Books, Calistoga, CA
Another Indie Favorite

Long Live the Tribe of Fatherless Girls: A Memoir, by T Kira Madden (Bloomsbury Publishing, $18) “Madden has no limits when it comes to the ones she loves—her cool and free older friends, her Internet-famous first girlfriend, her mother, her father, and us, the fortunate readers. She accomplishes one of the great feats of a memoir: in telling the story of her life, she translates its remarkable aspects (for one, her father worked for Jordan Belfort and was, yes, a wolf of Wall Street) while making the commonplace (love for one’s parents) remarkable. And, man, that last section—it’ll knock you loose.” —Molly Moore, BookPeople, Austin, TX

Stand Up, Yumi Chung! by Jessica Kim (Kokila, $16.99)

“Yumi Chung has a dream of being a stand-up comedian, but her parents aren’t on board. Suddenly, Yumi finds herself with a chance to attend a summer camp with her all-time favorite comedian, except everyone thinks Yumi is someone else. This book is hilarious, heartbreaking, and heartwarming all at once. And in the end, you will absolutely be standing up and cheering for Yumi Chung!” —Sarah True, Joseph-Beth Booksellers, Cincinnati, OH

For Teen Readers

Tigers, Not Daughters, by Samantha Mabry (Algonquin Young Readers, $17.95)

“Haunting and magical, Tigers, Not Daughters follows the lives of three young women one year after the death of their eldest sister, Ana — and it seems her presence still lingers. There’s Iridian, the writer; Rosa, the quiet observer; and Jessica, who strives to become the embodiment of who Ana once was. Now Ana leaves ominous signs and messages for her sisters, but whether she’s warning them or antagonizing them, none can say Mabry’s writing is so lyrical and enrapturing. I would have been happy to follow the Torres girls wherever their intuitive hearts took them long after the last page.” —Andrew King, University Book Store, Seattle, WA
