Other Indie Favorites

The Knockout Queen: A Novel, by Rufi Thorpe (Knopf, $26.95) “To say I admire The Knockout Queen feels inadequate, though I do admire a great deal of it: its voice, depth, structure—you name it. But it’s more honest just to say I love The Knockout Queen; I loved reading it, I felt involved in it, and, finally, I was so moved by its ending. This is an epic tale of friendship, one where the magnitude sneaks up on you quietly—but when it strikes home, it rings so brilliantly true.” —Will Walton, Books Are Magic, Brooklyn, NY

The Book of V.: A Novel, by Anna Solomon (Henry Holt and Co., $27.99) “Astounding! In the talented hands of Anna Solomon, the lives of three women in different eras come to life with equal vibrancy. A compelling look at the roles of women through time (ancient Persia, 1970s D.C., and Brooklyn in 2016), as well as what it means to have and use power and to feel safe in a relationship. So much material here for discussion. I cannot wait to put this into the hands of our readers!” —Caitlin Doggart, Where the Sidewalk Ends Bookstore, Chatham, MA
