Pages & Co: The Lost Fairy Tales, by Anna James, Paola Escobar (Illus.) (Philomel Books, $16.99) “During a trip to Paris to visit Oskar's father, Tilly and Oskar ignore the warnings from Tilly's grandparents and wander into a collection of fairy tales... but nothing is normal inside these stories. Back at the London Underlibrary, new head librarian Melville Underwood is trying to bind books and restrict access to Bookwandering. Both Tilly and Oskar, along with Tilly's grandparents and former librarian Amelia, are determined to find a way to stop him. Can they do it before it's too late? The Lost Fairy Tales is the perfect follow-up to The Bookwanderers.” —Rebecca Minnock, Murder by the Book, Houston, TX

For Teen Readers

Private Lessons, by Cynthia Salaysay (Candlewick, $17.99) “Beautifully written, musical, and lyrical, Private Lessons is a coming-of-age novel that pulled at my heartstrings. Claire's relationship with her mother and father had me weeping early on in the book, and I admired and understood her drive to escape her suburban life. Her Filipino heritage is a part of the story but doesn't define her, and the microaggressions that she faces are just like real life—cutting but ultimately unnoticed by anyone but the target. The lens of Claire's journey is beautiful and brilliant and I enjoyed reading about her growing up.” —Jackie Jou, Mysterious Galaxy Books, San Diego, CA
