Other Indie Favorites

The Big Door Prize: A Novel, by M.O. Walsh (G.P. Putnam's Sons, $27) "M.O. Walsh weaves quintessential Southern charm into a quirky scenario to produce The Big Door Prize, a novel that left me curious about the parts of myself I have yet to discover. You'll recognize the characters as your own next-door neighbors while being challenged to imagine the possibilities lying just past the periphery of a comfortably crafted trajectory. The novel questions what measures a life well-lived and answers with an entertaining tale of a grand machine in a modest town. Maybe potential is immeasurable. Perhaps that is exactly what gives us all hope." —Mary Garner Rees, Lemuria Bookstore, Jackson, MS

Mill Town: Reckoning with What Remains, by Kerri Arsenault (St. Martin's Press, $27.99) "This is a beautifully written story about two small towns in Maine and the paper mill that is the foundation of their economy. It tells the much bigger story of the sacrifice of the workers, and the injustices to them and the environment. Arsenault masters the nuances of family and history, which pulled me into the story in the first few pages and kept me there. A tender and honest reveal of her own family and hometown, and a truthful history of our nation. I'll be recommending this as a must-read to our customers." —Todd Miller, Arcadia Books, Spring Green, WI
