The Deliverance of Evil
by Roberto Costantini

“Masterfully delivering a mystery that explores modern Italian history, the complexities of relationships, and the depths of evil, Costantini’s The Deliverance of Evil is an intriguing thrill ride. Commissario Michele Balistreri, once young and impulsive, now older and haunted, must investigate a series of twisted killings and their connections to an evil from years ago. Costantini has created both an unforgettable, complex character in Balistreri and a mystery that never stops surprising the reader.”

Runner
by Patrick Lee

“When Sam Dryden decides to solve his insomnia by going for a run near the beach, he almost runs over a young girl who is also running, but definitely not for fun. She is being chased by what seems to be an army, and Sam—ex-military himself—can’t help but come to her rescue. What follows is an exciting story of brainwashing and psychic manipulations all done for the wrong reasons. Sam and his young friend must always stay one step ahead of the folks who want to get her, but then Lee throws in an interesting twist to make readers question the identity of the real bad guys. An amazing book that will keep you up until you finish!”

The Storied Life of A.J. Fikry
A Novel, by Gabrielle Zevin

“A J. Fikry is a bookseller with a small shop in a sleepy island resort town off the coast of Massachusetts. He’s a bit cantankerous, but with good reason: his wife, the ‘people person’ of the relationship, has recently died and his prized possession, a rare copy of Tamerlane, has gone missing. Despite those losses, there’s one strange addition, a baby girl left on his doorstep with an explicit request for Fikry to take her in. Zevin’s novel is romantic comedy, a spiritual journey, and if you include the chapter openings, a collection of short story criticisms as well. In short, it’s a celebration of books and the people who read them, write them, and sell them.”

Stringer
A Reporter’s Journey in the Congo, by Anjan Sundaram

“The tumultuous history of the Congo is fraught with power at its most corrupt, capitalism in its greediest form, and human survival at its most desperate. Sundaram, who lives in Kigali, Rwanda, knew nothing of journalism or the Congo when he traveled there to write about the country and pursue a writing career. This is reportage in its most excellent form—immediate, informative, and riveting.”

While Beauty Slept
A Novel, by Elizabeth Blackwell

“Humble Elise Dalriss was a companion to the beautiful princess Rose, who, as the fable recounts, was doomed since birth. The king’s aunt Millicent, banished from the kingdom on the day after Rose’s birth because the king felt she had put a spell on his wife, returns on the celebration day and proclaims, ‘You will all spend the rest of your life in fear.’ Then she disappears leaving behind a kingdom reeling in shock and horror. Through the eyes of Elise, Blackwell has retold the tale of Sleeping Beauty using dark, sensual, and magical language and a complex plot full of surprises.”

Wild
From Lost to Found on the Pacific Crest Trail, by Cheryl Strayed

“The inspiring story of Strayed’s solo journey snaps you from the beginning and keeps you engaged the whole way through. It was a bold move, but in the years following her mother’s death and the subsequent dissolution of her family, Strayed was no stranger to bold moves. The challenges, both external and internal, that she endures while on the trail are balanced with stories about her life leading up to her brave decision to hike alone for months in the rugged Western wilderness. This is a story of survival in every sense of the word, and one that will stick with you long after you finish reading.”

Counting By 7s
by Holly Goldberg Sloan

“Willow Chance has just been orphaned for the second time. A genius obsessed with growing plants, she finds herself uprooted and without connections—except for a school counselor who is bad at his job, the Vietnamese family that lives in the garage, and the taxi driver who thinks she is his angel. Counting By 7s is both touching and humorous, and you will fall in love with young Willow as she finds connections in the oddest places.”

All The Truth That’s In Me
by Julie Berry

“Four years ago, Judith and her friend disappeared from their small town. Two years later, only Judith returned, but she is unable to speak. What happened to her in those two years is slowly revealed. Sometimes shocking, and at times full of passion and longing, the narrative is addressed to Lucas, the young man Judith has loved since childhood. This fast-paced and multilayered novel is part murder mystery, part romance, and most powerfully, the story of a young woman who overcomes trauma and ultimately finds her voice.”

The Song of the Quarkbeast
The Chronicles of Kazam, Book 2, by Jasper Fforde

“Jennifer Strange and her motley crew of eccentric and erratic sorcerers may be all that stands between the Ununited Kingdom and the corruption of magic by the forces of King Snodd IV and his greedy cohorts. Despite every foul plot and obstruction the King throws at Jennifer, she will not quit. But will her sheer determination, intelligence, and grit be enough to save the day? Fforde’s sublime wit continues to both amaze and amuse!”

Steelheart
by Brandon Sanderson

“Sanderson has an unparalleled gift for fantastic world-building and the creation of complex, believable characters. In Newcago, the sun never rises and the super-human Steelheart holds the entire city of humans and super-humans hostage. Throughout the post-Calamity world, humans bow to Epics, allowing them to pillage, kill, and destroy at their leisure, until The Reckoners decide to take the power back. Can six humans defeat a hundred invincible villains? Is there any good left in the hearts of super-humans?”

Fortunately, the Milk
by Neil Gaiman, Skottie Young (Illus.)

“It starts out as a normal day: Mom is on a business trip; boy wants a bowl of cereal but there is no milk; Dad goes out for milk. But Dad is gone a long time and comes home with a story that will end up being one of your favorites. Dad is taken by aliens, jumps through a door marked ‘Do Not Open for Any Reason,’ falls through the space-time continuum, is found by pirates, and rescued by a stegosaurus—and that’s just the beginning! A tale that begs to be read out loud, this is destined to become a children’s classic!”

Just One Year
by Gayle Forman

“In this sequel to Forman’s Just One Day, readers are given Willem’s story. Willem travels from one place to the next and one girl to the next, but after one day in Paris with Allyson he is changed forever. He travels the world searching for Allyson but on the way he finds himself. Willem connects with people from his past and learns that love is more than a ‘stain.’ Forman knows how to pull at readers’ heartstrings and offers an incredible novel about a boy and his breathtaking journey toward romance.”
