repeated tragedy that tests their faith and their relationships, both more about the inexorable power and energy of Rising Asia. As in control. In the end, this book is less about individual actions and encounters, chances taken, and circumstances both in and out of his and honest portrait of a family and its secrets.”
—Linda Bubon, Women and Children First, Chicago, IL

Her
A Memoir, by Christa Parravani
(Picador, 9781250044396, $16)

“Whether you are a fan of memoirs, a fiction reader, or just plain love great writing, this true story of twin sisters separated first by violence and then by tragedy is a must-read. Parravani offers a deep look inside the inner life of twins and shows how addiction can tear at the very heart of a family. A mesmerizing read.”
—Laura Hansen, Bookin’ It, Little Falls, MN

How to Get Filthy Rich in Rising Asia
A Novel, by Mohsin Hamid
(Riverhead Trade, 9781594632334, $16)

“This is a slick, fast-paced novel that breaks the conventions done at the highest level, this is a must-read!”
—Karen Briggs, Great Northern Books & Hobbies, Oscoda, MI

Ordinary Grace
A Novel, by William Kent Krueger
(Atria, 9781541645859, $16)

“Death visits small-town New Bremen, Minnesota, in 1961 and particularly touches 13-year-old Frank Drum and his family. Frank, his Methodist minister father, his ‘fed up with God’ mother, his Julliard-bound older sister, and his ‘inseparable, the perceptive, but stuttering 10-year-old brother endure a summer of repeated tragedy that tests their faith and their relationships, both within their family and the community. Krueger, author of the Cork O’Connor series, expertly weaves this tale of mystery as he always does, but illuminates characters as never before. I can’t wait to share this amazing book.”
—William Bauer, Redbery Books, Cable, WI

A Place at the Table
A Novel, by Susan Rebecca White
(Penguin Books, 9780143124979, $16)

“This is an intricate yet accessible story of three characters - a young gay man dismissed by his parents, an chef who was born the daughter of slaves, and a well-heeled woman in a troubled marriage - whose lives converge at a venerable restaurant in Manhattan. Their life stories unfold at Cafe Andres, leading to a stunning revelation that proves that there are no real coincidences in life. Heartfelt but not sappy, tragic but not disastrous, A Place at the Table celebrates the ultimate triumph of life and spirit. Book clubs and foodies will eat this one up!”
—Nancy Simpson-Brice, The Book Vault, Oskaloosa, IA

Songs of Willow Frost
A Novel, by Jamie Ford
(Ballantine Books, 9780345522030, $15)

“Jaime Ford discovers more rich history in Seattle’s International District, this time in the Depression. Jaime Ford’s writing is beautiful and well-crafted. At a time when most young people were struggling to survive, he still manages to make his characters relatable and gives us an insight into how they coped. A wonderful read!”
—Karl Meutsch, Phoenix Books, Essex Junction, VT

The Sound of Broken Glass
A Novel, by Deborah Crombie
(William Morrow Paperbacks, 9780061990649, $13.99)

“This is another strong entry from Crombie that will delight and enthral readers. Scotland Yard Detectives Duncan Kincaid and Gemma James are once again on the case in the latest in this award-winning series. For all lovers of police procedurals done at the highest level, this is a must-read!”
—Susie Wilmer, Old Firehouse Books, Fort Collins, CO

The Unchangeable Spots of Leopards
A Novel, by Kristopher Jansma
(Penguin Books, 9780143125020, $16)

“Some can go along with any plot as long as the writing is fantastic. The Unchangeable Spots of Leopards is perfect for either type of book lover and is best described by these lines pulled directly from the book: ‘It is a rare sort of book that resembles nothing else and yet somehow seems intensely familiar. From the first line you feel your own heart begin to beat differently. Once it’s over you want to begin it again. It is a love letter; it is an aum bomb; it is literature we’d forgotten could be written.”
—Beth Golay, Watermark Books & Café, Wichita, KS

We Are All Completely Beside Ourselves
A Novel, by Karen Joy Fowler
(Plume, 9780142180822, $16)

“Rosemary is not yet six when her sister, Fern, is removed to a center for research. Fern and Rosemary were inseparable and her family falls apart after the removal: Lowell, her brother, disappears when he discovers where Fern was sent; their father becomes a distant, brooding man; and their mother is a shell of her former self. Why a research facility? Because Fern is a chimpanzee. In this brilliant novel, Fowler opens our eyes to the inhumane treatment of animals by humans and helps us to identify what it truly means to be human.”
—Karen Briggs, Great Northern Books & Nibblies, Oscoda, MI

With or Without You
A Memoir, by Domenica Ruta
(Spiegel & Grau, 9780808298340, $16)

“There is a category of memoir that I think of as ‘childhood survival story’ in which, because of parental failure or absence, the author’s youth is so difficult that the reader is amazed that she or he made it to adulthood. Ruta’s is such a story, but it’s told with such matter of factness, understanding, and humor that it can help but move you deeply and believe in their specific reality. The young man’s fortunes rise and fall through a series of lucky encounters, chances taken, and circumstances both in and out of his control. In the end, this book is less about individual actions and more about the inexpressible power and energy of Rising Asia. As in his previous novels, Hamid’s writing is taut and beautifully crafted.”
