THIS MONTH’S #1

Moonglow: A Novel
By Michael Chabon
(Harpur, 9780062225559, $28.99)

“The intersection of world history and family history, the interplay of memory and imagination, a tangle of humor and grief, and the blurred and shifting line that separates sanity and madness all come into play in this stunning book. In the months before his death, Chabon’s grandfather revealed much of his life to his grandson. On that foundation, Chabon has built a novel filled with family stories, World War II episodes—including an appearance by Wernher von Braun—an obsession with rocketry, and a vividly realized, against-all-odds love story. While all the characters are richly developed, the narrator’s grandfather—the brave, eccentric, anger-fueled, and deeply loving center of this novel—will remain with readers forever.”
