Any Human Heart: A Novel

By William Boyd

"Boyd's clever Any Human Heart remains a great choice for those in search of a meaty, literary novel. The story unfolds through the journals of the fictionalized British everyman Logan Mountstuart, a writer of minor talent, enabling readers to experience the ups and downs of Logan's life alongside him. The journal begins in 1923, when Logan is 17, and continues through his death in 1991 at 85, providing a bird's-eye view of English history in the 20th century as Logan crosses paths with major real-life characters."

In Patagonia

By Bruce Chatwin

"Bruce Chatwin's fascination with Patagonia began as a child, with a hairy piece of prehistoric animal skin that his grandmother kept in a curio cabinet. In Patagonia chronicles his adventure, 30 years later, to Argentina and Chile and to the 'furthest place to which man walked from his place of origins.' In a series of vignettes that changed travel writing forever, Chatwin maps his interior landscape while covering the people and places that make up the desolate wonder of Patagonia and the southernmost parts of the peopled world."

The New Jim Crow: Mass Incarceration in the Age of Colorblindness

By Michelle Alexander

"Using heartrending stories, incendiary court cases, clever parallels, and perfect metaphors, Alexander brings complex issues home for the reader in a way that is impossible to forget. The phrase 'required reading' is in danger of being overused, but the truths offered in The New Jim Crow are so revelatory that nothing else will do. This is a book that will forever change readers' perspectives, and, hopefully, those readers will help change the world."
