The Atomic Weight of Love: A Novel
By Elizabeth J. Church
(Algonquin Books, 9781616204846, $25.95)
“Church deftly traces the life of Meridian Wallace, an intelligent young woman who is searching for who she is and what she wants to become. As America braces for entrance into WWII, Meri falls for the ambitious Alden Whetstone, a much older but brilliant scientist. Aspiring to be a ‘good wife,’ Meri abandons her own academic pursuits in ornithology to follow Alden to Los Alamos, but the years that follow are filled with dashed hopes and compromises. Over the decades of her marriage, Meri attempts to fill the void of unrealized dreams by making a home and reclaiming her sense of self. Filled with sharp, poignant prose, the novel mimics the birds Meri studies, following her as she struggles to find her wings, let go, and take flight. Church gives readers a thoughtful and thought-provoking examination of the sacrifices women make in life and the courage needed for them to soar on their own.”

The Transit of Venus
By Shirley Hazzard
(Penguin Books, 9780140107470, $16)

Originally published in hardcover in 1980

“WWII has just ended when two Australian sisters—Grace, whose nature is described by her name, and Caro, more angular in terms of beauty and character—encounter the Englishmen who will subsume their lives. The result is not only a rapturous love story, but also a novel of ideas as adept at skewering society as it is people, as astute about global conflict as it is about love. The writing, at once luminous and precise, is heart-stopping and hair-raising, the sweep of the story hugely engrossing, the result brilliant.”

Killer Angels: The Classic Novel of the Civil War
By Michael Shaara
(Ballantine Books, 9780345407276, $16)

Originally published in hardcover in 1974

“Killer Angels was the most recommended title when I opened Lemuria Books in 1975. Even though it also won the Pulitzer Prize that year, it was not until years later that I finally read this great Civil War novel. Like Truman Capote’s In Cold Blood, Shaara’s Killer Angels created a new genre that many have tried to copy.”

Don’t Let’s Go to the Dogs Tonight: An African Childhood
By Alexandra Fuller
(Random House Trade Paperbacks, 9780375758997, $16)

Originally published in hardcover in 2001

“Fuller’s compelling memoir about her unconventional childhood growing up in Africa is sometimes heartbreaking, often funny, yet never sentimental or political. Living in Rhodesia in the 1970s was not easy. Beyond the difficulties of coping with the day-to-day dangers of scorpions, venomous snakes, disease, and other life-threatening situations, the Fuller family also had to contend with the perils of living in a country torn apart by war. Fuller writes about her unorthodox upbringing, her unusual parents, and the tragic loss of three of her siblings with candor and love.”
